It’s Thanksgiving; allow me to pass the blessings

Haiti (from Paul)

“Good morning!
Thank you so much for helping our medical mission trip to be a success! Your supplies made a HUGE difference!
...thank you so much!”

Another order we received for use in Haiti (from Second Mile Haiti) was for more than 4,000 diagnostics. FYI: That is more tests than we typically assemble in three months. {As an added degree of difficulty, while working on this order...I was impaneled on a jury for a criminal trial in Superior Court.} But our volunteers are incredible and always up for a challenge. Together, we completed the order in a timely fashion...and Amy and Jenn were able to restock their clinics.

Kenya (from Francis)

“Thank you so much for getting these test kits out so quickly and for the $200 credit. Please see [above] some photos from our birth center to pass along!
God bless!”

Guatemala (from Brenda)

"You are a Blessing and we appreciate EVERYTHING you do!! All over the world!!"

Niger (from Amy)

"...we had the patient tested at the clinic we were at for HIV. Thankfully she was negative. The malaria tests were fabulous. Very thankful for them!!"

Chad (from Christina)

Noam, getting a snack at the market: fried, salted, and spiced grasshoppers [author's musing: I wonder if spiced grasshoppers are on the Thanksgiving Day menu for many missionaries serving in Chad.]

1 THESSALONIANS 5:16-18

"Rejoice always, pray continually, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is God's will for you in Christ Jesus."

The Apostle Paul reminds us that giving thanks is not limited to one day in November. We are called to give thanks in all circumstances. Doing so may not change those circumstances...but they may change us.

Thank you to our prayer warriors.
Thank you to our financial partners.
Thank you to our vendors - some of whom have lowered prices for us once they learn about our mission.
Thank you to the missionaries around the globe living out God's call on their lives.
Thanks for being part of the Science with a Mission family.
